

GOLDEN GLOBES CORRESPONDENT

HOST

The Golden Globes were last night, which means that awards season is now in full swing. Here to talk about her thoughts on the ceremony is my 17 year old niece, Annie.

ANNIE is in her bedroom. She looks as much as what you can imagine a 17 year old to look like. She does not look amused to be there.

ANNIE

Hey.

HOST

It's great to have you on the show, Annie.

ANNIE

(sarcastically)

I'm so happy to be here.

HOST

So, what'd you think of the show last night?

ANNIE

It was like, whatever.

HOST

Were there any moments from the show that you were excited about?

ANNIE

I, uh, I liked it when Jason Sudeikis won, I guess.

HOST

Oh! We're you a big Ted Lasso fan?

ANNIE

No, he just reminds me of my friend Emily's dad.

HOST

What?

ANNIE

Yeah, like, you don't know Emily's dad, obviously, but he looks just like Jason Sudeikis, so when he won I was like, oh my God, he looks just like Emily's dad but like, not as put together, obviously. Emily's dad always dresses really, really well. We always see him and we're like, wow, you look super nice today.

HOST

Annie, do you have a crush on your friend Emily's dad?

ANNIE

What? No!!! And like, even if I did it wouldn't matter anyways because Emily's dad is dating the front desk lady from school now and apparently Jason Sudeikis' wife left him for Harry Styles so he's like, totally on the market.

HOST

Moving on, you said you didn't watch Ted Lasso. Was there anything that you watched and liked?

ANNIE

I guess I liked Borat.

HOST

Borat won a couple of awards last night, how'd you feel about that?

ANNIE

I mean, like, the reason I liked the movie so much was because Emily's dad is actually from Kazakhstan, so it was really cool to be able to, like, absorb a piece of his culture.

HOST

Annie, do you think that Borat is a real documentary?

ANNIE

What do you mean?

HOST

You know what - forget it. So Emily's dad is from Kazakhstan?

ANNIE

Yeah, and he for real sounds just like Borat, which was like, a lot for me to handle. But NOT in a weird way. Just in a way that was like, 'wow, my friend's dad sounds exactly like Borat, let me just watch this movie to fall asleep every night for the next 6 weeks or whatever'.

HOST

You fell asleep to Borat for 6 weeks?

ANNIE

I literally just said that I didn't do it in a weird way.

HOST

You know what, its been a long year. I can't even judge you for it.

ANNIE

Thank you.

HOST

So, we've talked about things that you liked about the Globes this year, was there anything you were upset about?

ANNIE

Um... actually yeah, there is. And it's an opinion I've never shared, like, with anyone before, so if you can promise me that I won't get canceled for talking about it I'll say it.

HOST

You're really making me nervous with the way you're setting this up.

ANNIE

Promise me!

HOST

Okay fine! I promise!

ANNIE

So like, Soul was actually really bad representation.

HOST

Soul, as in...

ANNIE

... as in one of the most critically acclaimed films of the year? Yeah. Horrible representation for the body swapping community.

HOST

The what?!

ANNIE

You heard me. I've swapped bodies with another human soul before and it was absolutely nothing like they showed it in the movie.

HOST

Can I ask you what happened?

ANNIE

So like, I was at my friend Emily's house for a pool party last summer, and we were eating buffalo chicken wings because they're my favorite and then I like, started choking. And Emily didn't know what to do because we get CPR training or whatever in Senior health, so she called her dad and he like, got it out. But I think I almost died while I was choking so when the chicken piece came out my soul kinda went out with it, and I was in Emily's Dad's body for like, a whole minute. And I didn't learn the meaning of being alive when it happened like in the movie. I just learned that having a mustache isn't as fun as it looks, it's just itchy.

HOST

Wow, that sure is some story.

ANNIE

If I get canceled for sharing my truth I'll tell my mom to literally never invite you over for Thanksgiving ever again.

HOST

I will do my best to keep my word.

ANNIE

Look, it was really nice talking about the Globes or whatever, but I actually have to call Emily to study for AP Bio. We're on the human reproduction unit. And that is one that I do not want to get wrong.